How do you screw up your life? It's easy when you have everything you need. Do something spontaneous. Like move to a new city to be with the man you have loved since you were eighteen. That's how Natalie found herself living with Mark and fighting Lenzie for his attention. Natalie is Mark's girlfriend, Lenzie is the ex. She is Mark's ex-lover and Natalie's ex-best friend. When fate once again forces her away from Mark, Natalie is lost and alone. She doesn't know how to forgive Mark for breaking her heart. She keeps trying to run away from the very thing that brought her this far, and like the Bermuda Triangle, he keeps sucking her back into the lies, the drinking and the heartbreak. When a dark night breaks the ties for her, she finds out too late that love isn't always enough, and forgiveness is something she gave too late.
