Men are like a box of chocolates-you like what's on the outside. Hop on board for this delicious, freshly-squeezed sequel to the acclaimed On Picking Fruit, where Curtis Jenkins once again braves the fickle dating scene in his continuing search for the perfect man. After writing the successful 101 Ways to Collide Into Your Gay Soul Mate, Jenkins finds on his book tour that men-whether in Provincetown, Los Angeles, or somewhere in between-rarely wear their hearts on their bicepsunless it's a tattoo. Funny, unpredictable, and strangely moving, Fruit Cocktail is, like its feckless hero, ripe for the picking. Arthur Wooten has also written for theatre, film, and television.
