"The Sudan Project" helps make children aware of the devastating effects of poverty and war in Sudan, as well as the suffering of Darfur's people. As current as today's headlines, this significant work seeks to stir the conscience of an awakening America. The book focuses on the plight of the people of Darfur and encourages hope that they can flourish through the help readers can provide. Such organizations as the United Nations and UMCOR are working to provide relief to this forgotten region. For ages 9-12. Based on the experiences of The Sudan Project mission by Ginghamsburg United Methodist Church in Tipp City, OH, The Sudan Project has raised over $1.6 million for Darfur relief since 2004. A portion of the proceeds from this book go to help the people of Sudan through The Sudan Project. For more information, visit The Sudan Project. "The Sudan Project" Teaches children about Sudan, through an A to Z overview of its history and culture, as well as how the social climate affects Sudanese lives. Helps children learn how they can be part of a worldwide relief effort taking place even as they read the book. Contains a glossary, lesson plans, a Sudanese recipe, discussion questions, service project ideas, and more is ideal for directors of Christian education, pastors, teachers, parents and grandparents, libraries, and relief aid organizations. Melissa Leembruggen is an author, motivational speaker, small group trainer/team builder, wife, and mother. She obtained a master's degree in communication from Auburn University, where she also worked as a communications specialist for the Auburn University School of Forestry. She lives in Beavercreek, Ohio, near Dayton and is a member of Ginghamsburg United Methodist Church, where she is an active volunteer with The Sudan Project.
