This is a book that every parent wants to buy as a gift for their young ones because teenage behaviour is a widely shared concern in the world today. It is clear that kids are doing stuff that even adults are hesitant to talk about. Young people continue to demonstrate extreme confidence in the incorrect belief that guns and knives are for protection. Young people seem to also believe that drug and alcohol abuse, bullying, prostitution, and teenage pregnancies are a way of enjoying life. Young people continue to demonstrate extreme confidence in the incorrect belief that cohabitation is a substitute for marriage. As parents, how do we ensure that young people do not carry incorrect beliefs and attitudes into adulthood? How do we protect vulnerable teenagers? How do we create a secure, safe, and peaceful environment for our children? How do we ensure that our young sons and daughters grow up the right way? In view of all the evil facing young people, the author argues that as part of the solution SAD things such as Separation, Adultery and Divorce can be avoided. In this book he draws attention to the values, process, steps and insights from which young people can learn and adopt to help them grow up the right way and enter and remain in marriage, thereby creating a secure, safe, and peaceful environment for themselves. This book is also dedicated to lone parents and those living and raising their children in a foreign country.
