This is an evocative collection of photographs that draw inspiration from the writings of Raymond Chandler. Raymond Chandler was one of the world's best-loved crime writers, his unique narrative style and iconic characters - most notably the Private Detective Philip Marlowe - have had a profound influence upon a generation of writers. "Daylight Noir: Raymond Chandler's Imagined City" brings together a stunning collection of photographs portraying the ominous, forbidding locations in and around Los Angeles - from Malibu Pier to the Hollywood Sign, from Union Station to the Beverly Hills Hotel, and from MGM Studios to Musso & Frank's Grill - that formed the literary geography of Chandler's novels.
