In this book Yung-chen Chiang tells the story of the origins, hopes, visions and achievements of the social sciences movement in China during the first half of the twentieth century. He focuses on the efforts of social scientists at three institutions - the Yanjing Sociology Department, Nankai Institute of Economics, and Chen Hansheng's Marxist agrarian research enterprise - to relate their disciplines to the needs of Chinese society. As all three groups received funding from the Rockefeller Foundation, their stories offer a unique window on to Sino-American interactions, revealing how the social sciences became a lingua franca of the cultural frontier. Drawing on an impressive variety of archival materials used here for the first time, this study corrects and enriches current scholarship, presenting both a more detailed and panoramic view. Chiang's analysis engages the complex and broader issues of the transfer, indigenization and international patronage of social science disciplines.

评论

社会学成为social engineering的阵地。总归还是关注计划经济、development state的起源。

燕京大学、南开经济研究所、上海大学与瞿秋白、马克思主义学者陈翰笙

-----
主要参考美国基金会档案的研究。汉语拼音和威氏拼音混用有点累……其余还好。

-----
Too elementary

-----
Interesting about the Rockefeller and Chen Hansheng. But it's hard to understand what Chiang really means by "modernization" and "social engineering", the key concepts, by Chinese social scientists' own terms. Also too many details.
