Agrippa's Daughter is the dramatic story of a Jewish queen whose life was the greatest romance of ancient time. Queen Berenice Bat Agrippa of Israel was born in 28 CE. She was the daughter of the King of Israel, Agrippa I, the grandson of Herod the Great. A Hasmonean Princess, Berenice was strikingly beautiful, with flaming red hair from the line of King David Ben Jesse, and fierce green eyes. After her arranged marriage to King Herod of Chalcis, who died when Berenice was 23, she married the physician Shimeon Ben Gamaliel, of the House of the great Rabbi Hillel, to whose teachings she became a committed disciple. Later, after the murder of Shimeon in Jerusalem, she traveled to Rome and fell in love with Titus, son of the Emperor. They planned an impossible but beautiful union between the royal lines of Rome and Israel. Berenice's story is also the story of the Nation of Israel, in the years before the destruction of the Second Temple in Jerusalem, and the cruel exile of the Jewish people from their ancient homeland. Ultimately, it is the story of the attachment through the ages of the Jewish Nation to that land.
