New York magazine writer Felicia Storms loved Harrison, her fiancA(c), with her whole heart, only to have it brutally crushed when she discovered his infidelity. Building a life of work and friends around herself, she gave no thoughts of ever sharing her life with a man again. She eagerly accepted her new assignment of covering the annual sailing regatta in Tortola. Beautiful as well as intelligent, Felicia catches the eye of Tom Flagg, captain of the racing yacht Baldaragh. During her writing assignment she hears one bad rumor after another about this seemingly atoo good to be truea man. At first, having no interest in what seems to be another sailing playboy, she spurns his initial advances. Later, after almost being forced to get to know him, she finds herself torn between the bad stories and her growing feelings for this captain. She then embarks on an eye-opening investigation. What she learns about this unusual captain ultimately changes both their lives in ways neither of them ever imagined.
