Have you ever tried to write about what something looks like? Do you know what words are used to describe how something tastes or feels? In this book, you will acquire the tools you need to write interesting and effective descriptive paragraphs about important people, places, and things in the United States. Pictures relate to the main text, providing guidance as you read about each step in the process of paragraph writing. Activities, charts, and vocabulary exercises make each Learning to Write title a valuable resource for readers and writers.
