Professional conduct issues are highlighted throughout so students are aware of the pitfalls which may await them in practice, whilst self-test and revision style questions provide students with an ideal opportunity to test their knowledge and identify gaps in their learning where further study is required. Each chapter ends with a list of wider reading and web links which direct students to relevant further information encouraging further exploration of the subject. Online Resource Centre This innovative and freely accessible Online Resource Centre offers invaluable support to students throughout their study of property law. Updates allow students to keep fully abreast of major legal changes in this dynamic area of the law, whilst problem style questions provide students with a further opportunity to practice applying their knowledge to practical scenarios. The case studies contained in the text are accompanied by online example documentation highlighting what a typical solicitor's file should look like, and provides examples of the forms and procedures which will be encountered in practice. Lecturers are further able to test student understanding of the subject through the use of an interactive test bank of multiple choice questions, and can track students' progress throughout the course.
