Jessica Hagy's deceptively simple artwork - drawn on index cards and based on the graphs and Venn diagrams we all vaguely recollect from high school geometry - is full of sly wit and subtle humor. Some of her visual jokes hit you right away with their clever drollery while others take a few moments to creep up on you (what's both: dead; rolling around? Two things: rotisserie chicken and the founding fathers). Her images make a perfect complement to a line of three sleek, stylish gift products: a postcard book, sticky notes, and reporter notebook.
