"Jane is fun, spunky, and tenacious and radiates an inner beauty born of a deep yet very simple faith, which has sustained her through the many ups and downs of life. Jane also possesses a special awareness of the humor found in everyday life. Her keen observations coupled with her varied experiences (many of which I have shared) and her unique way of expressing them have endeared her to many. Just hearing her name brings a smile to my lips. Now, through the pages of this delightful book, you too will soon discover a smile on your face. Happy reading." -Gigi Graham (oldest daughter of Billy and Ruth Graham) "Lady, I've Seen Enough" is a rollicking ride and warm read. Frist laughs at herself but also shares a lot about her spiritual struggles and anchors. It is a growing-up story; she is still growing and cherishing family and friends for foibles and for contributions to her life and spirit-a personal story both universal and particular." -Nancy C. Edwards (Professor Emeritus, UNC Charlotte) This is the second book written by Jane Frist, a cottager of the mountain town of Montreat, North Carolina. She is a neighbor and friend of the Billy Grahams and first cousin of Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist. Her unique experiences in life have inspired her to write this book.
