The Second World War, Ethiopian riches, and desertion start Expatriate off with a bang, and this is just the beginning. Part 1 sets the stage for a betrayal that will shake the foundations of one of the most powerful "families" in Brazil. Part 2 deals with the results of that betrayal, the impact that it has on the lives of those we become to know so well. Guilherme and Francisco, deserters from Mussolini's Army, who have taken on new identities as friends from Portugal; David, an expatriate from the United States who falls in love with the beautiful Regina; Eduardo, Guilherme's son-in-law, jealous of David's relationship with his father-in-law and his father-in-law's faith and trust in David's abilities and sense of integrity. Doug Robinson's characters come alive, their struggle becomes yours. Expatriate has it all ... you will not want to miss this one.
