When you grow up in a small town, you feel like everyone is watching you and you have to live to their expectations; some do and then some find and travel the wrong path. Some find hope, others help comes too late. When you are a teenager you want someone or something you can relate to. Running Blind is a book of poems all about experiences that have happened in my life. So many things have happened in my life I could fill a journal of loss and remembrance in a matter of minutes, but you learn to move on, grow, find your talent, explore, help and heal others. aLove is life; without being hurt you wouldn't feel and if you never feel then you can't love.
