With sincerity, strength, and a passion for life, Miri holds close communion with her God and understands the lives of the friends around her. That all changes when Del, a close friend, reveals he is quite a different person than she thought. The unexpected turn of events teaches Miri that she cannot always trust what she sees. Miri doesn't realize that she and Del are being watched by James, a man assigned to locate Del and who knows even more secrets than either Miri or Del realize. James' assignment is unpleasant, but one that must be completed, and he needs Miri's help to be successful. As both men sense her sincerity and desire for truth, small seeds are being planted which God will use in unexpected ways. Will the truth about Del destroy their friendship, or will Miri's faith offer him an escape from his past? What must James and Miri both discover before God can open new doors for them? How are lives changed when God reveals that He can work even when there's nothing as it seems?
