A young man by the name Mathew Anderson used to have a normal life in a small town. Until one tragic accident triggers a chain of events that plunges him into an unseen world. When every question is answered with a question he is forced to go on a journey for real answers. This road that he seems to have fallen on is something that has been chosen specifically for him. Who chose this road and why? Sometimes our unseeable future is intertwined with a burden of chaos. What shrouds our sight to be able to move down a road in life is a false sense of security. When the veil is pulled back from this false sense of security, you realize its your worst fear. You now have a choice, to face it or freeze in your tracks. Whether you stop or you face it, time forces us forward because of its unrelenting nature. It always makes you chase time into the future, no matter what that future holds.
