With superb skill and feeling, Graham Greene retraces the experiences and encounters of his extraordinary life. His restlessness is legendary; as if seeking out danger, Greene travelled to Haiti during the nightmare rule of Papa Doc, Vietnam in the last days of the French, Kenya during the Mau Mau rebellion. With ironic delight he recalls his time in the British Secret Service in Africa, and his brief involvement in Hollywood. He writes, as only he can, about people and places, about faith, doubt, fear and, not least, the trials and craft of writing.

Not only he detailed sources of inspiration for his characters, he truly revealed his ways of escape, all the visits to troubled places, all the brothels, all the pipes of opium...provided his therapy. One might expects to find answers in ones memoir, but all we need, is a sense of understanding.
