I said that although hanging Colby was almost certainly against the law, we had a perfect moral right to do so because he was our friend, belonged to us in various important senses, and he had after all gone too far.' Donald Barthelme is a puckish player with language, a writer of short but endlessly rewarding comic gems, a thinker and an experimenter. In these nine short stories, whether writing about a hairy, donkeyish king or a touching, private gesture of city-sized proportions, his is a surreal, deadpan genius. This book includes "Some of Us Had Been Threatening Our Friend Colby", "The Glass Mountain", "I Bought a Little City", "The Palace at Four A.M.", "Chablis", "The School", "Margins", "Game", and "The Balloon".

為自己如此喜歡感到慚愧..."Colby said that everybody went too far sometimes and weren't we being a little Draconian? Howard said rather sharply that all that had already been discussed and which did he want, gibbet or tree?"/"in these days of increased respect for the environment we didn't want that did we?"

'Who's girl are you? Are you Daddy's girl?' The baby says, 'Momma,'and she doesn't just say it once, she says it repeatedly, 'Momma momma momma.' I don't see why I should buy a hundred-dollar dog for that damn baby.
