Shortlisted for the highly prestigious Jugendliteraturpreis for 2011 "An intelligent computer game with a disturbing agenda." When 16-year-old Nick gets a package, he wonders if it will explain the behavior of his classmates, who have been secretive lately. The package contains the mysterious computer game Erebos. Players must obey strict rules: always play alone, never talk about the game, and never tell anyone your nickname. Curious, Nick joins the game and quickly becomes addicted. But Erebos knows a lot about the players and begins to manipulate their lives. When it sends Nick on a deadly assignment, he refuses and is banished from the game. Now unable to play, Nick turns to a friend for help in finding out who controls the game. The two set off on a dangerous mission in which the border between reality and the virtual world begins to blur. This utterly convincing and suspenseful thriller originated in Germany where it has become a runaway bestseller. "International praise for" Erebos: Like the game in the story, this book pulls the reader under its spell and doesn't let go until the puzzle is solved.

-- "Buchkultur " This year's summer thriller

-- "Die Zeit " This captivating book for young people about the danger of virtual worlds is impossible to put down.

-- "Brigitte Magazine " A masterful, riveting thriller.

-- "Neue Zürcher Zeitung " A super-suspenseful book full of insight about the fascination that computer games hold.

-- "Literature.de " An unbelievably good book.

-- "Freizeitmagazin Weinheimer Nachrichten " Plunges the reader into a fantasy world in the same way that Nick is drawn into his game.

-- "Eselsohr " This thriller is a tour de force.
